Title of SCI		Building Youth Peace Frameworks through the Messenger of Peace
Objective of the SCI	Project expected result	To design a comprehensive policy framework for youth empowerment in Bangladesh under the Messenger of Peace (MoP) Program, promoting peace, social justice, and resilience in communities. The framework will focus on engaging youth in conflict resolution, leadership, and social cohesion, enabling them to be active participants towards a more peaceful and just society lesson learned from the MENA region.
Location	Country, District, State, City	Bangladesh
Urban/Peri-Urban/Rural	Select one option	Urban
Target Population group	Youth/Children/Women/PWDs/Refugees/IDPs/Elderly	Youth
Direct Beneficiary	Specify by number, gender, and age ranges	50, 25 Male and 25 Female
Implementation Method	Tools/techniques used: (conflict analysis, mediation, etc.)	The MENA region provides valuable lessons on youth peace building, social justice, and community resilience that can be adapted into the Messenger of Peace (MoP) Program in Bangladesh. Tunisia, Jordan, and Morocco, for example, have been successful in their policy-driven youth participation in peace building, conflict resolution programs, and social justice community programs. Tunisia's National Youth Dialogue is an example of how youth participation in government can be a pathway to social cohesion, and Jordan's peace education initiatives stress the

		importance of leadership training to prevent violence. Embracing these paradigms, Bangladesh's MoP policy formulation should focus on empowering youth through formal conflict resolution training, leadership training, and policy advocacy. Also, integrating awareness campaigns, social entrepreneurship, and peace platforms online—such as MENA's youth movements—can strengthen Bangladesh's peace building and social justice approach.
Positive Peace Pillar Alignment	Primary and secondary PP pillars overlap	The Messenger of Peace (MoP) Program in Bangladesh aligns with the Positive Peace Framework by bolstering key pillars underpinning sustainable peace and social justice. To begin with, it is pro-governmental by engaging policymakers in youth-peace processes and enhances human capital through leadership ability and conflict management training. It promotes good neighborhood relations by engaging in greater dialogue and community mediation. It also intersects with secondary pillars such as acceptance of other people's rights through campaigns on diversity and inclusion, minimal corruption through stressing ethical leadership, and a positive business environment through the integration of social entrepreneurship into peace building. By doing so, the MoP Program is confident to make inputs to short-term conflict resolution as well as long-term peace building structures in Bangladesh.
Rotary International Area of Focus Alignment	Primary RI Area of Focus overlap	The Messenger of Peace (MoP) Program of Bangladesh is designed according to the Areas of Focus of Rotary International, with key emphasis on empowering Peace building and Conflict Prevention through the development of youth with leadership, conflict resolution, and mediation skills to help foster social cohesion. It also promotes Basic Education and Literacy through peace education, workshops, and awareness building equipping young people with social justice and nonviolent communication

		knowledge. Furthermore, the program overlaps with Community Economic Development by merging social entrepreneurship and volunteer-driven projects that support enhanced sustainable peace programs. The overlap ensures that the MoP Program assists in advancing Rotary's international mission of promoting peace, education, and sustainable community development in Bangladesh.
SDG Alignment	17 SDGs overlap	The Messenger of Peace (MoP) Programme in Bangladesh supports several Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), including SDG 4 (Quality Education) through provision of peace education and conflict resolution skills for youth, SDG 5 (Gender Equality) through enhancement of equal engagement of young women and men in leadership and peace building, and SDG 8 (Decent Work and Economic Growth) through enabling social entrepreneurship and youth enterprise. It fosters SDG 10 (Reduced Inequality) through grassroots mobilization and advocacy of marginalized communities and promotion of social justice, contributes to SDG 11 (Sustainable Cities and Communities) by fostering social cohesion, and advocates for SDG 16 (Peace, Justice, and Strong Institutions) by youth peace building and policy mobilization. The program further promotes SDG 17 (Partnerships for the Goals) by promoting collaborations between government, civil society, and global partners towards sustainable development. Through these confluences, the MoP Program is in the vanguard of driving Bangladesh's journey towards a peaceful, equitable, and sustainable future.
Impact's Sustainability	How/if the project expected to sustain the achieved results	The Messenger of Peace Program in Bangladesh is rendered sustainable by training in youth leadership, collaboration with communities, and policy advocacy for the integration of peace building interventions into local governance and national policies. Collaborations with Rotary International

	and other organizations will provide long-term resources and support, and continuous monitoring and evaluation will ensure the program's efficacy and adaptability for long-term success.
